

The Literacy Corner

Furman University

This June, Furman University will offer a summer program for students between the ages of 6 and 14 with academic needs in literacy processes like reading, writing, listening, speaking, and viewing. This summer program will provide an individualized educational program; a one-to-one, 60 minute tutoring session from Monday to Thursday; close communication with parents; and a final report to be shared with parents, students, and the school the child attends if parents would like this. At the beginning of the program, certified teacher participants will evaluate each student individually. Then, a unique program will be determined for each child. The daily program will include a variety of reading, writing, speaking, listening, and viewing opportunities including warm-up reading, miscue analysis/running record assessments, writing activities, new reading and writing activities, and plans for reading and writing at home each day.

- Dates: Four weeks, June 9 – July 2, Monday – Thursday
(Except week 1 which will be Tuesday – Friday)
- Time: Two separate tutoring sessions
(9:00-10:00 AM and 10:30-11:30 AM)
- Location: Furman University Library
- Cost: $50 with $25 returned for 90% attendance

If you would like to recommend a student for attendance at The Literacy Corner, please discuss it with that child's parent. Please tell others in your school about The Literacy Corner as well. We will accept students who are not receiving outside reading help from special services in the district and are interested in all students who are struggling with literacy processes. If you need additional copies of this information, please see www.furman.edu/gradstudies/theliteracycorner.htm or contact me and I will be happy to email them to you.
