Furman Engaged reflects our institution’s long history and commitment to engaged learning. Furman faculty-student research collaborations date back to early as the 1930s, Furman’s first faculty-led study away program took place in 1969, and internships were first offered in the 1970s. Furman continues to expand its engaged learning offerings to include experiences such as service learning, first-year writing and capstone seminars, and learning communities. Furman Engaged provides students the opportunity to complete the last and key step of these high-impact learning experiences – the public sharing of their work with peers, faculty, staff and the community.

In October 2016, the launch of The Furman Advantage reaffirmed and reinvigorated Furman’s commitment to providing students with these high quality impactful learning experiences. The Furman Advantage promises every student the opportunity to pursue their interests, passions and goals through hands-on, deep learning experiences. Furman Engaged showcases the impressive range of possibilities of this promise. It is a time for students to present, perform and reflect on their work, which includes musical and theatrical performance, scientific and social research, community projects, creative and non-fiction writing, and travel study.

This program provides the location, session title and presenters for all Furman Engaged events. The full schedule, including titles of presentations, can be found at furman.edu/furman-engaged.

- Research, course project, and community-engaged learning posters will be on display in the afternoon at Timmons Arena.
- An Internship Gallery Walk will also take place at Timmons Arena.
- Students will present creative works in the Art Department (Senior Studio Art Presentations), English Department (Readings from The Echo), and Music Department (Student Composers Concert).
- On Monday evening before Furman Engaged, an opening session called “Furman Engaged: ACTION” will introduce engaged learning to students and prepare them to get the most out of the program.
- Furman Engaged will end with a student-led celebration, “Furman Engaged: WRAPPED” at Timmons Arena that will include a free International Food Festival hosted by FUISA, live music and Student Organization presentations.

Thank you for joining us in today’s Furman Engaged celebration of our students’ academic excellence, discovery and hard work. We hope the day inspires you and helps you decide which engaged learning experiences might be appropriate for your own pathway!

ENGAGED LEARNING – WHAT IS IT?
Engaged learning (also referred to as high-impact learning experiences) is often associated with categories of experiences such as undergraduate research, internships, study away, first-year seminars, capstone courses, service learning, and learning communities. What defines and unites these experiences are the characteristics they share that facilitate transformative student learning development.

These characteristics include: cultivating student commitment and investment through time and effort, providing clear learning objectives and preparation for the experience, developing meaningful relationships with faculty, staff, and peers, facilitating engagement with diverse people and ways of thinking, providing students frequent and substantive feedback, requiring the application of classroom learning to solve novel problems, encouraging the synthesis, integration and application of knowledge to address real-world problems, providing students opportunities to reflect on their learning, and public sharing of what has been gained or learned from the experience.

ENGAGED LEARNING – WHAT ARE THE BENEFITS?
Studies on the impact of higher education show that students who have engaged learning experiences demonstrate strong critical thinking and writing skills, appreciation of diversity and diverse viewpoints, and high levels of engagement with their education, both in and out of the classroom. At Furman, students report that their engaged learning experiences inform their short- and long-term professional goals, help define their sense of identity and hone their relationship skills. These benefits last beyond students’ college experiences. Gallup conducted a survey of over 3000 Furman alumni who graduated in the last 30 years. Results show that Furman graduates who conducted research with a faculty member as an undergraduate, or who had in internship or job that allowed them to apply their classroom learning were highly engaged at their job and expressed positive well-being after college. Students who participated in a study away program reported that their experiences changed how they saw themselves and how they viewed the world.

FURMAN ENGAGED REFLECTION CONTEST

Whether you are presenting at Furman Engaged, attending sessions throughout the day or both, we encourage all students to reflect upon their Furman Engaged experience – to think about what they shared with or learned from their peers.

As you reflect, why not submit your thoughts and reactions to the Furman Engaged Reflection Contest? The prompts for the photo and narrative reflection contests are below, as well as instructions on how to submit your entries.

Capture an image and explain in 300 words why Furman Engaged is a culminating experience that demonstrates transformative learning in action. How did this moment inspire and inform your pathway at Furman? (This could be related to your own presentation or one that you attended.) Be sensitive that not everyone wants their pictures taken. Ask for permission before submitting a picture of someone else.

NARRATIVE CONTEST PROMPT:
Select a specific moment during Furman Engaged that represents why this campus-wide event is a culminating experience that demonstrates transformative learning in action. How did this moment inspire and inform your pathway at Furman? (This could be related to your own presentation or one that you attended.) Explain in 750 words or less.

Submissions are due by Tuesday, April 21. Scan the QR code below to go directly to a webpage with instructions and a submission form. Essays will be judged by a committee of Furman faculty and staff. Several $150 prizes will be awarded to the best photo and narrative reflections. Winners will be announced by Thursday, April 30. Selected winners’ essays/images will be featured on the Furman Website.
